MISS LATHROP BUREAU CHIEF

Addresses International Congress on the Welfare of the Child.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 27.—The work of the Children's Bureau recently established by the United States Department of Labor was reviewed by Miss Julia C. Lathrop, chief of the bureau, in an address before the Third International Congress on the Welfare of the Child here, and she spoke of the work outlined for the future.

She said in part:

"The Children's Bureau has carefully avoided taking up any subject within its field which was already in the hands of any other government agency. The first object selected for study was infant mortality, because of its obvious importance, its comparative simplicity, and the fact that it was not then being studied by another government agency. The bulk of the allowance asked by the bureau for the coming year in its proposed estimate is designed for the continuance of this study into infant mortality and for allied work.

Results Hoped For.
"The inquiry into infant mortality conducted by the Children's Bureau is original in character, first because it begins by a study of the birth record rather than the death record; second, because it is not a medical study but its design is to secure data regarding the social, industrial and civic surroundings of infancy in about fifty typical American communities, especially small towns and distinctly rural districts.

"The results hoped are first, a body of valuable statistical information, second, an awakening of public interest and responsibility by the mere fact of the inquiry, and third, information upon which further advances in preventive work can be based. This inquiry cannot go to any community which does not register the births of its babies and hence another natural result is an improvement in birth registration.

"This country has no system of vital statistics adequate to furnish an exact estimate founded on the figures of the few cities and states which do have adequate statistics, but the vital statistician of the census bureau says that probably 300,000 children die each year in the United States. The great sanitarians tell us that half these lives could have been saved if we had utilized methods of hygiene and sanitation already understood, more than that, if children are well born and cared for, that infant mortality may be a negligible quantity.

The power of reduction lies with us, and it is limitless in extent. In New Zealand, where a voluntary society for the health of women and children has been at work for some years, the death rate has been reduced to fifty-one for the whole country, while in certain communities it is still lower, notably in the city of Dunedin, where it has been reduced to thirty-eight. The New York City board of health says "public health is purchasable. Within certain natural limitations a community can determine its own death rate." Newsholme, the great English authority, says infant mortality is the best single index we have of social conditions.

Increase Public Interest.
"The problem of infant mortality has been stated by the scientists. The methods of meeting it have been worked out by the sanitarians. It now remains to popularize those methods, to increase public interest in securing their application. The Children's Bureau is attempting to popularize that vast field of information regarding social, civic and individual hygiene, which, if applied by citizens and communities, will result in a lowering of the infant death rate and a raising of the general standard of health."

SILVER JUBILEE IS CELEBRATED

At the Famous Eiffel Tower Where Flag Was Hoisted 25 Years Ago.

PARIS, April 27.—The Eiffel Tower has been celebrating its silver jubilee.

On April 2, just twenty-five years ago, the French flag was hoisted on its summit. It was the principal attraction of the time of its erection and afterwards it was the subject of hostile criticism on the part of artists and men of letters.

The composer, Charles Gounod, the great poet, Leonote de Lillie, the novelist, Guy Maupassant, united in protesting against the disfigurement of Paris by a structure which would not be tolerated even "by Commercial America." Other critics declared that it would not last twenty years, but it stands today as strong as ever to vindicate its creators, the symbol and triumph of modern industry.

For the Eiffel tower is the pioneer of the light metallic constructions which makes possible by its suppleness and enormous strength the most daring conceptions of the architect and engineer.

The famous tower is, indeed, a miracle of lightness with all its 8,000 tons of metal, as a simple calculation shows. If a model on the scale of one thousandth were made it would only weigh twenty-six ounces, would only weigh twenty-six ounces, the weight of a thick sheet of paper.

At first hardly more than an engineering curiosity, the Eiffel tower found its vocation when wireless telegraphy was invented. Now the correct time and a budget of the latest news is flashed from it twice daily to ships at sea and far-off French colonies in Africa.

BUCKHANNON

BUCKHANNON, April 27.—The Buckhannon high school was defeated in baseball Friday by the Belington high school team by the close score of 6 to 5. It was the first game of the season to be played on the home ground and the local boys showed up in first class style. Wolf pitched the whole game of twelve innings for the Buckhannon boys and showed good form throughout the game. The Belington team beat the locals by the score of 7 to 1 at Belington and the home boys consider that they came out very well all the way around.

A great number of local people and several from out of town attended an interpretation of "The Shepherd of the Hills" given by George C. Williams at the college auditorium. The recital was very interesting and all attended agreed in saying that it was one of the best recitals given at the college this year.

The pulpit of the First Baptist church was filled Sunday morning and evening by the Rev. L. B. Moore, the corresponding secretary of the West Virginia Educational Society of the Baptist church.

The advance agent of Sparks Famous Shows has been making all the arrangements for its two performances here May 7.

William D. Judy has been called to his home in Circleville on account of his mother's serious illness.

Mrs. Triche, of West Main street, is visiting friends at Falmouth for a few days.

Howard Bond, son of Dr. C. C. Bond, of Ellamore, is here on a short visit to his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Bond, of the island.

BIG DEATH DUTIES.

Peter Coates, of the great London threadmaking firm of J and C. Coates, left an estate of $12,000,000. The death duty to be paid to the state will amount to $1,894,000. The $70,000,000 estate of the late Anthony Brady, of New York, has just paid an inheritance tax of $2,554,000.

BETTER BABIES.
